Greetings to the JHSPH Community from the Global Health Council,

For many years, we have been fortunate to have the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health as an organizational member of the Global Health Council, the world's largest membership alliance dedicated to saving lives by improving health throughout the world. This long-standing relationship has provided valuable opportunities for partnership and collaboration over the years. We have had many occasions to be grateful for the school's outstanding leadership and support in the field of global health, and we are excited to reward JHSPH students with an incredible opportunity.

All students enrolled in a degree-seeking program with the School of Public Health will be eligible to become an “Associate Professional Member” of the Global Health Council at no charge.

What are the benefits of Associate Professional Membership?

- Access to restricted, “member-only” areas of the Council’s website, which includes the popular “Career Network” section for job postings, volunteer opportunities, and résumé posting.
- Access to online versions of the Council’s widely regarded publications, “HealthLink” and “AIDSLink” (including current issue and archives)
- The opportunity to receive a weekly email update of the most recent global health news and information that has been posted to our website in the last week.
- Receipt of a monthly member newsletter with information about Global Health Council members and activities and events at the Council.
- Ability to submit an abstract for participation in the New Investigators in Global Health program, and win scholarship money to attend the Global Health Council’s Annual Conference.
- A special member-discounted registration rate for the Council’s acclaimed Annual Conference, as well as discounted rates on other Council products and services.
- The opportunity to volunteer at the Council’s Annual Conference for a reduced registration rate
- A student member discount on the latest edition of the Council-published book, Finding Work in Global Health, a practical career guide
- Notices of upcoming Council and global-health related events in the Baltimore/Washington area.
- Support from and networking opportunities within the national University Coalitions for Global Health Resource Group.

Who is eligible?

- Any student enrolled in a degree-seeking program with JHSPH is eligible for Associate Professional membership. Verification of student status will be required! Your Associate Professional Membership will remain active through the end of the month in which you graduate.

How do I sign up?

How is Associate Professional membership different from the Council's Student Member and Professional Member categories?

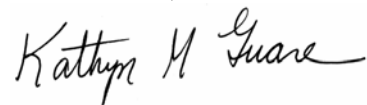

- As a Professional or Student Member of the Council, you receive all of the benefits of Associate Professional membership, plus the following:
 - Printed copies of "HealthLink" and "AIDSLink" mailed to you
 - Printed copies of the Council's technical and research reports, on such topics as malaria, tuberculosis, HIV/AIDS and reproductive health, mailed to you
 - Printed copies of the new international peer-reviewed journal, Global Public Health
 - The opportunity to cast a ballot in the Council's annual Board of Directors election.
- Membership dues for full Council membership are as follows:
 - Professional Membership: $120
 - Student Membership: $60

How do I find out more about the Global Health Council?

The Global Health Council is the world's largest membership alliance dedicated to saving lives by improving health throughout the world. Our mission is to assist all who work for improvement and equity in global health to secure the information and resources they need to work effectively. Our diverse membership is engaged in health services delivery, advocacy, development cooperation, policy, training and research. The Council works to build relationships among these members – representing non-governmental organizations as well as private corporations, foundations and government and multi-lateral agencies – to create a powerful network of actors dedicated to guiding and advancing the global health agenda. For more information, please visit our website at www.globalhealth.org

We look forward to welcoming you and others in the Johns Hopkins community to our broad base of individuals and organizations dedicated to saving lives and improving health throughout the world.

Best Wishes,

Kathryn M. Guare
Vice President of Membership Resources
